Name of Chairperson / President: Debra Pigram

Is your organisation Not-for-profit? Yes No

How long has your organisation been in operation: 23 years

What is the core service(s) of your organisation? Marrugeku is an unparalleled arts presence in Australia today, dedicated to Indigenous and non-Indigenous Australians working together to develop new dance languages. Marrugeku breaks down walls and builds bridges between urban and remote dance communities, between Indigenous and non-Indigenous artists and between local and global situations. Led by co-artistic directors, Dalisa Pigram and Rachael Swain, they co-conceive and facilitate Marrugeku's productions that tour the Kimberley region, nationally and internationally. Research laboratories and workshops are also presented locally, nationally and internationally. This year Marrugeku launched its Emerging Artist program, supporting local Broome emerging dance artists. Marrugeku's works have been acclaimed across Australia and the world appearing in the most prestigious festivals and venues in Europe, the Americas, Asia and the Pacific.

For what purpose does your organisation require storage?

There are a number of Marrugeku's productions that remain in repertoire. Each production has sets, props and costumes that need to be stored in a secure, accessible and weatherproof facility, until they are required for presentation. The company also has a range of technical equipment and a tarket floor that require storage when not in use. These valued items are used by the company when presenting productions or workshops in Broome and when touring to various communities in the Kimberley.
